

Register-Star

PHOTO: free103point9 WGXC's Hudson Gallery Event

Published:
Monday, February 15, 2010

Proprietor of Kling Magnetics and Solaqua in Chatham and also masterful banjo player Jody Rael entertains the audience assembled at the Nicole Fiacco Gallery on Warren St. Saturday evening with some of the better known protest songs, as part of an all-star program that included writers, poets and visual artists as well as musicians. Organized by Paul Smart and Max Goldfarb, the event was for the benefit of the nascent WGXC FM — free103point9 — community radio. A film by Fischli and Weiss is projected on the wall. (David Lee/Hudson-Catskill Newspapers)